Featured Story: Rule of Law Day VLF Co-Hosts Awards Program and Experience CLE Seminar

On October 15, Virginia's legal community celebrated Rule of Law Day at the Virginia Holocaust Museum in Richmond. VLF Fellows, members of the Virginia State Bar, justices of the Virginia Supreme Court, and other prominent guests gathered to honor Michael W. Smith and the Honorable Jane Marum Roush for their efforts to uphold the Rule of Law throughout their decades of service to the Commonwealth.

Preceding the awards program, Virginia CLE® held a continuing legal education seminar surveying the legal responses to war crimes, genocide, and human rights atrocities. The seminar reinforced the themes of the awards program, since just laws and accountability are essential aspects of the Rule of Law. The session was the latest installment of our Experience CLE programs, which combine seminars with immersive experiences.

Irving M. Blank, Chairman of the Nuremberg Courtroom Exhibit Committee and past President of the Virginia State Bar and the Virginia Law Foundation, began the Rule of Law Awards Program by introducing the Honorable Jane Marum Roush. Roush received the Civility in the Law Award for her service as a judge for the Fairfax County Circuit Court, as a justice for the Virginia Supreme Court, and for her current work as a mediator for The McCammon Group.

"I always try to conduct myself in accordance with the highest ideals of the profession," said Roush. "I feel deep personal and professional satisfaction as a mediator and I try to be courteous and civil as I help instill the Rule of Law."

Next to be honored was Michael W. Smith, who was presented with the Rule of Law Award. A partner and chairman at Christian and Barton, LLP, Smith has served as president of the Bar Association of the City of Richmond, the American College of Trial Lawyers, and the Virginia State Bar. Through his leadership, Smith has helped spread awareness of the Rule of Law.

After receiving the award, Smith warned against taking the Rule of Law for granted. "History tells us it can be attacked and that can result in disaster. This museum teaches what can happen," said Smith. "Remain vigilant, remain patriots, and protect the Rule of Law every day."

Between the two programs, a luncheon was offered with generous support from VLF Fellow Jay Weinberg.

Thank you to everyone who attended and to all who contributed to making the event a success.
